

David Poulson – Colloquium speaker – 10/12/2017

Title: Beyond journals: Communicating science to those who make the decisions and pay the bills.

Abstract: Science is far too important to leave only to scientists. Yet non-scientists are often viewed as unable to grasp the nature of fundamental research. Is it their fault? Or do scientists need to take more seriously their responsibility to execute the entire scientific method, including that part about “share your results.”